arise therefrom in reference to his professional attendance upon Mrs. White, the colored woman alleged to have been poisoned by a fellow employe in the Interior department:—"Last Saturday, 23d instant, this lady called at my office while on her way to her home, about 5 o'clock p.m. She stated that she had cut some peaches up for her lunch, taking them from her home, and she left them in her office room and went out. On her return she commenced to eat them, and discovered that while swallowing them her throat began to burn. She called the superintendent of the bureau and made known the facts to him. As well as I can recollect, he advised her to call in the aid of some of the doctors in the department. They examined the peaches, and thought that there was some poison in them, such as croton oil. They prescribed some remedies for her to cause her to throw up, which had the desired effect. When she called on me she seemed to be suffering with considerable irritation of the mouth and throat and with diarrhoea. I prescribed for her and saw her again the next day, at her house, when she seemed better. Incidentally, I will mention that Mr. Mc-Comas, druggist, corner 14th and L streets northwest, examined some of the peaches on Sunday, and he told me that night that from the test he made he was satisfied that it was croton oil on the Springfield, Ill., Sept. 29.—The opinion was rendered by the Illinois supreme court yesterday in a case involving the question of the power of the classical legislature to regulate rates charged by the colored janitor of the Spencerian Business College, who was arrested Wednesday for stealing called for trial in the Police Court this morning. The first charge tried was that of stealing a lot of silverware, blankets and other articles from Mrs. Spencer. He pleaded quilty to the charge. He was Spencer. He pleaded quilty to the charge. He was then arraigned for stealing 198 books, the property of the Washington Library company, and also pleaded guilty to this charge. Mrs. Spencer was present and interceded to have the prisoner get as light a sentence as possible, on account of his good character. Mr. Moore said that he charged the value of the property within the limit of petit larceny, to save the defendant from going to the penitentiary on a charge of grand larceny, in view of his previous good character, and to give him another chance. He was sentenced to thirty days in jail in the first case, and six months in the second.

> THE HARVEST MOON .- The September moon was full on the 27th at 12:26 a. m. It is the beautiful harvest moon, and possesses special claims to the distinction. For, owing to the position of the ecliptic in regard to the equator, at this season, the moon rises for several consecutive nights with only a comparatively small interval between the consecutive risings. The short autumnal days seem thus to be prolonged by the floods of silvery moonlight that make the night beautiful as day. The phenomenon is as easily explained as the
